*I believe in the holy catholic Church,
communion of saints*

“God Reflectors”

1 Peter 2:4-12; Hebrews 12:1-3, 18-24

“Catholic” means “world wide” – it refers to the church around the world. We affirm that the message of the church is the good news of Jesus the Christ for every person, in every situation, and in every age.

The church: Jesus is the living stone, the cornerstone, and we are living stones built into a spiritual house.

The church is now a movement of many tongues, tribes and nations.

We are called out of the world and into a community of faith.

As the holy universal church, we are the royal priesthood, the reflectors of God’s holiness, God’s light and God’s love in this world.

The communion of saints. Communion – is an old English word for “fellowship.”

Saint means “someone who is holy.” Now to be sure - we do not declare ourselves to be holy because of the things we do or the things we do not do. We are holy because the one who has called us is holy.

The church is full of sinners who come to be cured, and by the grace of God we become saints who are set apart to be holy in this world. We are set apart to reflect God’s light and love to all we meet. The church is holy – it is not ours, it belongs to God, built upon the foundation of Jesus.

When we say that we believe in the communion of the saints, we are connecting ourselves spiritually with that body of believers, throughout all of time and space. And the church is to share the light of Christ with the world.
